The 25th Summer Deaflympics Tokyo 2025 concluded successfully on November 26. To welcome the Taiwan delegation home, the Executive Yuan hosted an appreciation banquet on December 2 to commend the athletes for their outstanding performances and to thank the support teams for their hard work. Attendees included Premier Cho Jung-tai, Minister of Sports Lee Yang, Political Deputy Minister Cheng Shih-chung, Delegation Head Lin Chao-ying, and Delegation Leader Chao Yu-ping, among others, all of whom expressed gratitude to the athletes, coaches, and support staff for their dedication.

Premier Cho greeted the delegation with the warm words “Welcome home,” thanking them for every step they took on the international stage—steps that allowed Taiwan to see hope and the world to see Taiwan. He extended his highest respect to every athlete in this year’s delegation and expressed deep appreciation to the coaches, medical and athletic training teams, sign language interpreters, team staff, as well as the Ministry of Sports (the Ministry) and the Chinese Taipei Deaf Sports Federation, which worked tirelessly to prepare for the delegation’s participation. Due to everyone’s support during every training session and every competition, the athletes were able to move forward with confidence.

Premier Cho noted that the opening line of the delegation’s welcome-back video was deeply moving: “All the effort is not for anyone’s applause.” Hearing those words alone was enough to bring tears to one’s eyes. Through resilience and indomitable determination, the athletes and coaches strived hard as they competed for the highest honors. Their achievements are a source of pride for all citizens. The Premier also offered special thanks to Minister Lee Yang, who since taking office on September 9 has promoted both sports for all and international competition, while also designating adapted sports as a key policy direction. Through adjustments to regulations, venues, and equipment, the government aims to ensure that everyone can enjoy the joy and confidence that sports bring, truly realizing the principle that “sport is a right for all.” The Executive Yuan will continue to fully support the Ministry by improving training environments across systems, scientific support, personnel, and funding, providing the strongest possible backing. The goal is to enable every athlete to compete freely and fully showcase their strengths, and upon returning to their communities and schools, to inspire more people to participate in sports—making sports for all an integral part of everyday life in Taiwan.

President Lai Attends the 2025 Presidential Cup Street Dance Competition on Ketagalan Boulevard, Joined by the “Dream Team” Judges Led by Honey J

► Minister of Sports Lee Yang gave a speech at the 2025 Presidential Cup Street Dance competition

Hosted by the Ministry of Sports (the Ministry), the finals of the “2025 Presidential Cup Street Dance” were held on November 16 on Ketagalan Boulevard in Taipei. Thousands of dancers from across Taiwan gathered, setting new national records for both the number of participating teams and the overall scale of a street dance competition. This marked the first time in Taiwan’s history that street dance has been staged in front of the Presidential Office, and is also one of the very few street dance events worldwide to take place at a nationally symbolic landmark. The event symbolizes street dance officially moving from the streets into the mainstream, opening a new chapter as a nationwide sport.

President Lai Ching-te attended the opening ceremony today and watched the breaking and choreography finals in the evening. President Lai stated that street dance is a language of freedom: as long as there is space and a melody, dancers can create their own universe. He expressed hope that the Presidential Cup Street Dance will encourage creativity and promote sports participation. This year's competitors ranged from young children and youths to parents, proving that the Presidential Cup truly serves as a national platform for all. Minister Lee Yang noted that from Sun Chen (Quake) serving as flag bearer at the Paris Olympics to hosting the Presidential Cup Street Dance in front of the Presidential Office, these milestones reflect the government's commitment to street dance culture. The Ministry will continue promoting sports for all to encourage broader public participation.

The competition atmosphere was electric. The lineup included Olympic breaker Sun Chen, world champion B-girl Yang Jia-li, championship dance crew IP Lockers, the popular southern Taiwan children's dance crew Apple Studio, and the POPSY Dance Crew, known for its creativity and focus on female empowerment, among others, all competing on stage. This year, wheelchair dance group Wheel Dance Wave competed in the all-style choreography category and advanced to the finals, earning the audience's loudest applause. Their performance reflected the Ministry's vision in promoting adapted sports and its commitment to building a more inclusive, accessible, and barrier-free sports environment where everyone can find their place in sports for all.

The finals' judging panel was widely regarded as a dream lineup in Taiwanese street dance history, bringing together judges from Europe and Asia and spanning multiple generations. Dancers hailed it as "the strongest judging panel in street dance history," featuring renowned dancers from South Korea's Street Woman Fighter—Honey J, ReiNa, and Redlic—along with European champion Spider, Korean world champion B-girl YELL, and leading Taiwanese figures including Gang Yi of HRC, Xiaozhang of IP Lockers, Chris-sy (Ha-mei) of waacking, and Baichuan of Akuma Diva.

Beyond the intense competitions, parents formed cheer squads to support their children, with moments of joy and celebration becoming some of the most touching scenes—capturing the true spirit of sports for all, with participation by everyone. At the closing ceremony, athlete representatives presented President Lai with a commemorative cap symbolizing street dance, expressing their gratitude for the government's promotion of sports for all.

In the finals, EX-KIDS, HRC BEAST KIDS, nonstop, DSDJ Family, VOSSI, and Breaking Bad Crew won the choreography category titles; Snappy Two, Beware of Children A, YA CK, Purify the Mind, Championship, and IP LOCKERS claimed the battle category championships; and GUGU GAGA, Central Demon Slayers, The Hans, Hiraeth Bboy, TC NEW BLOOD, and CITY4 INSTRUMENT took top honors in breaking.

- ▶ The Ministry of Sports continues to enhance oversight of public sports facilities to ensure safer exercise for the public – Tainan Municipal Basketball Court

To ensure the quality of maintenance and stable operation of public sports facilities, and to allow the public to conveniently enjoy safe exercise spaces nearby, the Ministry of Sports (the Ministry), in accordance with Articles 9 and 10 of the Regulations on the Installation and Management of Public Sports Facilities has conducted annual assessments of local governments' "Operation, Management, and Maintenance of Public Sports Facilities" since 2019, evaluating five counties or cities each year. In 2025, the Ministry completed assessments in New Taipei City, Changhua County, Tainan City, Hualien County, and Kinmen County, and conducted random inspections of 10 sports venues to comprehensively evaluate whether local governments have effectively implemented relevant management measures.

High-quality public sports facilities are crucial for promoting sports for all. Through this annual assessment system, the Ministry is able to gain a full understanding of the management and operational status of sports venues, while encouraging local governments to enhance management practices and provide more user-friendly services. In future, the Ministry will continue to work with local governments to ensure the quality of sports venues, enabling the public to exercise with confidence in safer and more comfortable environments. These efforts aim to enhance public health and quality of life, while achieving the goals of venue accessibility, user-friendliness, and sustainable operations.
